Statement of Senator Tom Harkin (D-IA)

On the Five-Year Anniversary of the Raid on the Agriprocessors, Inc. Plant in Postville

“Sunday marks the five-year anniversary of the mass arrests at Agriprocessors, Inc., in Postville. The tragedy at Postville has highlighted the harsh reality that our current immigration system is unworkable and unacceptable. The status quo has trapped some 11 million undocumented immigrants in a lawless limbo, and has allowed unscrupulous employers to operate a shadow economy based on exploitation and law-breaking. Postville exemplified a system that is broken and in need of urgent reform.

“I am pleased that President Obama has demonstrated a strong commitment to accountable, comprehensive immigration reform and that a group of my colleagues responded by proposing legislation to do that. I hope to work constructively with my colleagues and improve this proposal so we can create a new immigration system that is fair to American workers and taxpayers and offers a practical, humane solution to the reality that millions of undocumented immigrants and their families are within our borders.

“I also salute the Obama Administration and the Department of Homeland Security for implementing deferred action for childhood arrivals, better known as DACA. In a time of increasingly tight budgets, it is necessary to put our resources where they're actually needed rather than punishing children and pushing undocumented immigrants further into the shadows.”

This is really amazing. Sen. Grassley, Rep. Steve King, and Sen. Rand Paul will all be in Cedar Rapids on Friday (tomorrow) for an, Iowa GOP fundraising dinner. This makes the Postville event even more relevant to the national conversation -- especially in the press.

Rand Paul will be a major character in shaping the immigration debate -- especially on in the Republican party. This event is also one of the first 2016 campaign events of the cycle.

Rand Paul, like all of the potential Republican candidates running for president in 2016, is waiting to see how Iowans respond to the immigration debate as he calculates the politics of the Iowa caucuses. They know they need to win Iowa's caucus and many are afraid to stand strong on immigration because of Steve King and Chuck Grassley. Sen. Rand Paul has recently lurched to the right on immigration. We all saw last election how this worked out for Mitt Romney.

A few things to keep in mind regarding the politics of immigration in Iowa, in light of the GOP Fundraiser on Friday.

- Mitt Romney followed Steve King's lead on immigration and it cost him the election
- We'll see if Sen. Rand Paul makes the same mistake
- Mitt Romney promised to veto the DREAM Act at a campaign event in La Mars, Iowa and lost the Latino vote by historic numbers

- Postville has given Iowans a deeper understanding of immigration
- We have seen first hand the harm caused by anti-immigrant policies promoted by members of Congress like Steve King, in 2011, only 25% of caucus goers supported mass deportation

If possible, I think it would be great if we could get 20 or so people outside of the hotel at 5pm with rally signs. Do you all think that would be possible? The address is 7725 Kirkwood Blvd SW, Cedar Rapids, IA 52404. This also means that Senator Grassley might be at his office in Cedar Rapids -- his office is near the courthouse and federal court.
